Dear Sacred Heart Family,

This week, on October 11, the Church celebrates the feast of one of her newest saints, Pope St. John XXIII, who opened the Second Vatican Council in 1962, and died the next year. One of the central themes of the pontificate of Pope Benedict XVI was to ensure that the Council was read in continuity with everything that came before, and not as a rupture with the past. In his opening address to the Council of October 11, 1962, St John XXIII relates a similar message:

In calling this vast assembly of bishops, the latest and humble successor to the Prince of the Apostles who is addressing you intended to assert once again the magisterium (teaching authority), which is unfailing and endures until the end of time, in order that this magisterium, taking into account the errors, the requirements, and the opportunities of our time, might be presented in exceptional form to all men throughout the world.

It is but natural that in opening this Universal Council we should like to look to the past and to listen to its voices whose echo we like to hear in the memories and the merits of the more recent and ancient Pontiffs, our predecessors. They are voices which proclaim in perennial fervor the triumph of that divine and human institution, the Church of Christ, which from Jesus takes its name, its grace, and its meaning.

The greatest concern of the Ecumenical Council is this: that the sacred deposit of Christian doctrine should be guarded and taught more efficaciously. That doctrine embraces the whole of man, composed as he is of body and soul. And, since he is a pilgrim on this earth, it commands him to tend always toward heaven.
