READINGS FOR THE 23RD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

September 5, 2021

In the Gospel, a group of people begs Jesus to heal their deaf friend. Jesus takes the deaf man away by himself and does heal him. Isn't this our wish for so many we love? Don't we want Jesus to open the ears and eyes of those who seem deaf and blind? Let us pray that all of us open our eyes and our ears to the Gospel message.

The focus of our readings is God's love and salvation expressed in physical healing. The readings show God's concern for those who have no hope apart from miraculous intervention.

Isaiah images the redemption of God's people in the wonderful, gratuitous healing of the blind, the deaf, the crippled and the mutes.

The message from Mark reveals Jesus as the fulfilment of that promise. Jesus himself is redemption. The man who is deaf and mute experiences this in his gift of hearing and speech. Like all miracle stories, it is a sign of ultimate salvation.

Just as those in physical need look to God for healing, so, too, we look to God for the free gift of salvation.

Isaiah 35:4-7a

The blind shall see, the deaf shall hear.

When have I experienced God's healing in my life?

Letter of James 2:1-5

Do not show favor to the rich.

Who is it in whom I cannot see God's presence?

Mark 7:31-37

Jesus heals a deaf person.

How do I experience the salvation Jesus has won for me?

Both the Gospel Reading and the Second Reading for next Sunday (Sept. 5th) continue similar themes from this Sunday (August 29th), themes about having our hearts and our intentions consistent with our actions.

This week emphasizes the quality of how we feed our thoughts and intentions, which flows into our actions helping us to honor God with wise and good actions. Next week emphasizes manifesting a consistency toward helping others. This includes helping people in two contrasting categories: on the one hand helping people who are finding change and improvement in their lives to be something very difficult and, on the other hand, those who surprise us by being blessed more profoundly than we seem to be.

Next week's readings seem to focus, in a way, on "those people," people outside of ourselves. The First Reading and the Gospel focus on people suffering from physical infirmities, the blind, the crippled, the deaf and the mute. The Second Reading focuses on the poor, especially when a rich person is standing in front of them and this highlights the contrast between them.

Throughout the Gospel of Mark, we see people's actions and decisions presented in a way to encourage us to respond with a stronger faith and faithfulness. In next week's Gospel, the deaf and mute man could represent people who are stubborn toward Jesus' message. His healing, which was described very concretely, was meant to draw a response from others who read or heard the Gospel proclaimed.

Would they (and us) continue to stubbornly refuse to really even listen to the Gospel? And, once obstacles to believing are removed, would we proclaim the message as broadly as the healed man did: "the more he ordered them not to [tell about the healing], the more they proclaimed it" (Mark 7:36). If this man and his friends proclaimed the Gospel so vigorously, surely we can do so too.

The Gospel of Mark also reflects many aspects of St. Mark's Jewish heritage. This is not only in his use of the word of command – Ephphatha: Be opened – but also in how he described Jesus' method of healing. The Jewish language is very concrete in its description of items. For example, the Hebrew term for "New Year" is Rosh Hashanah, or the “head of the year.” And so, Jesus heals the deaf and mute man by using mud and spittle.

The method of healing can also remind us of how God created Adam in Genesis, chapter 2. There, God takes mud of the earth and molds it into a person and then breathes life into it. Similarly, we ask the Lord to help us to be open to the re-creation that he wants to affect in our lives, flowing especially from our baptism. May we then proclaim God’s blessings as openly as the healed man of the Gospel. May we do so even when it appears that other people, “those people,” are being blessed more profoundly than we are!

Pastor’s Letter

In Romans 8:28, St. Paul teaches us, “We know that all things work for good for those who love God, who are called according to his purpose.” I see that being true in several ways over this tough past week.

Typically I like to visit the St. Benedict School classrooms on Tuesdays to practice some books of the Bible or verses of the Bible with the students. And, since we are just beginning the new school year I was looking forward to seeing this year’s class dynamics and meet new students. However, both because I had some diocesan annual reports yet to complete and because this Tuesday was the summer reader program’s pool party for those students, I didn’t visit this week.

And, we had planned to have a school Mass this week on Thursday, but I couldn’t confirm that a very large bat had left the church, plus we needed to clean the church after the 8:35 a.m. Mass, we decided to cancel that Mass as well.

So, when I received the positive COVID-19 test ~Noon on Friday, I had not been in the school or had direct contact with the students for more than 8 days.

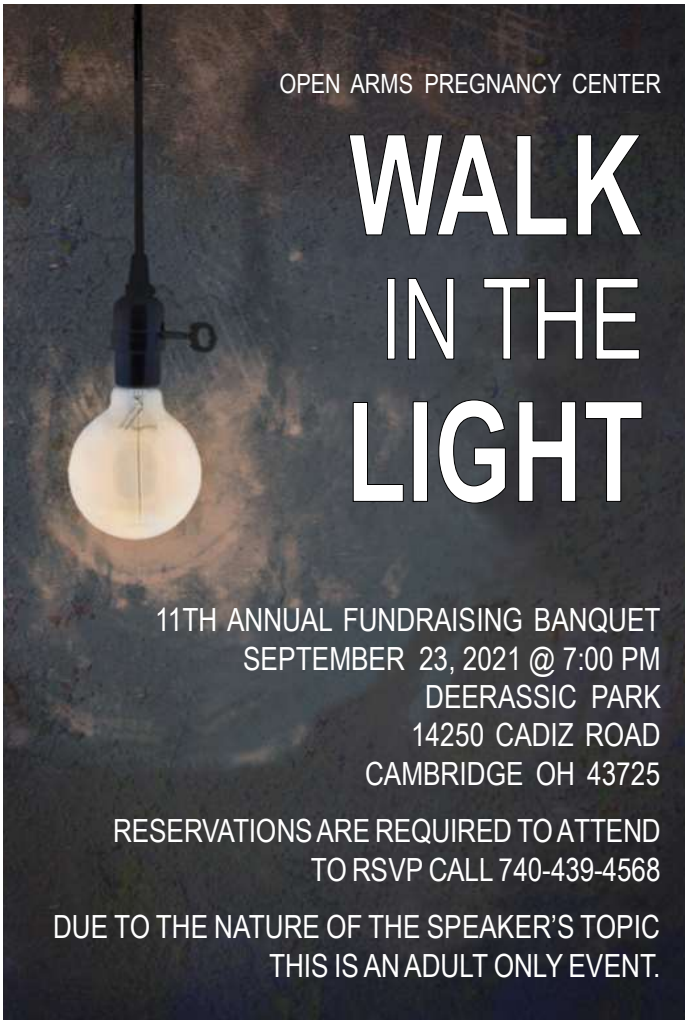

With Fr. Bob not available for Mass coverage either, we are blessed that Fr. Jeremiah Hahn will be able to help us this weekend. He had contracted the coronavirus back in December 2020, which is now wildly providential in that he can help us out this weekend having plenty of built-up immunity! And, Fr. Wayne will host him at his residence in Caldwell so that we can maintain a more complete quarantine of the rectory here in Cambridge. “All things work for good...!”

Additionally, if my recovery and treatment go smoothly, I should be able to conclude the quarantine next Friday, September 3rd, which would be a great birthday blessing!

Please keep our parish as a whole in prayer since there are a number of other parishioners who have been affected this past week with this delta variant. May our Lord, through the intercession of St. Corona, St. Benedict and Sts. Peter & Paul, enable a healing wave to replace this coronavirus wave!

May the Lord help our love for God to grow each day (again, see Romans 8:28), help us to always be responsive to His healing graces and always be ready for the gift of eternal life in Heaven!
