Secret Santa

Due to the virus, things will be done a little differently this year. Secret Santa tags will be available next week on the bulletin board, but you do not actually need one. You can just purchase your toy and take it directly to the Harper Hutchison building on Steubenville Avenue. Toys may also be dropped off in the Marian Room at St. Benedict Church or at the parish office.

The Chalkboard

ST. BENEDICT SCHOOL

Faithfully Educating God's Children
Since 1911

This past Wednesday there was no school in honor of Veterans Day. The school was privileged last Tuesday with a presentation by one of our parents and military Veteran, Mr. Troy Gray. The students had many thoughtful questions and presented him with cards to thank him for his service to our country.

The school has been blessed with many wonderful donations to help us through these challenging times ~ and it makes a difference! Annual Appeal letters will be mailed in the next few days and we are grateful for any and all donations to continue to the long standing tradition of teaching the faith and educating the youth of our community. Thank you for your constant support of St. Benedict School!

Please pray for our students, staff and school as we continue on our journey this year with "Jesus as our Guide".

In His Name, Sue Sanders

JOB OPENING: St. Benedict School is seeking a long-term substitute teacher. Preferred applicants must have a valid teaching license. For more information, please contact Sue Sanders at 740-432-6751.

The Catholic Women's Club will meet Tuesday, November 17, with Mass at Sts. Peter & Paul Oratory at 6:00 p.m. and the meeting to follow in the Social Hall. Masks and social distancing will be required. All women of the parish are invited to attend. The Mass is open to all parishioners. Please note that the CWC will not meet in December.

Table of Plenty

Suggested food donations for November are canned vegetables, macaroni and cheese, and peanut butter (but all non-perishable food items are happily accepted). Please place your donations in the St. Benedict Church Marian Room.

SCRIPTURE READINGS FOR OUR LORD JESUS, CHRIST THE KING

November 22, 2020

God loves and cares for us as a shepherd tending the flock. We are called to loving service of each other. In the end, we shall be judged on our service to, or neglect of, those around us who are in need.

The people of Israel saw in their leader the role and function of both shepherd and king. David, for example, is spoken of as both shepherd (which he was) and king (which he became). The role of the king was not only to rule but also to guide, feed, and care for his people. God is also spoken of in shepherd imagery (e.g. Psalm 23). Here in this passage from Ezekiel 34, God says, "I myself will shepherd my flock."

In the Gospel reading, the Last Judgment, Jesus is both Shepherd and King. He will judge between sheep and goats. The focus is on the real manifestation of our faith in acts of charity; on that we will be judged.

Ezekiel 34:11-12, 15-17

The prophet speaks during an exile caused by leaders' failures to care for and protect their people. How might our leaders understand the prophet's message in the reading from Ezekiel?

1 Corinthians 15:20-26, 28

We are linked to Adam by nature. We are linked to Christ by grace and will share in his resurrected life.

How do I live the life of grace I have in Jesus Christ?

Matthew 25:31-46

Faith must be expressed in acts of love. We will be judged on how we respond to Jesus in the poor and needy.

If the judgment of God came today, would I be counted among the sheep or the goats?

We conclude the liturgical year next week with a grand finale. We do so by remembering the end of time when all people will be gathered before God the Father, as Jesus teaches us in Matthew 25.

Fr. Raniero Cantalamessa, O.F.M. Cap., Preacher to the Papal Household, offered these reflections in 2008 about the significance of next week's feast day.

I interviewed Professor Francis Collins, former director of the National Human Genome Research Institute at the National Institutes of Health in the US. I asked him: "If evolution is true, is there still room for God?" [Collins] answered: "Darwin was right in formulating his theory according to which we descend from a common ancestor and there have been gradual changes over long periods of time, but this is the mechanical aspect of how life came to form this fantastic panorama of diversity. This does not answer the question of why there is life."

"There are aspects of humanity," he continued, "that are not easily explained: like our moral sense, the knowledge of good and evil that sometimes leads us to make sacrifices that are not dictated by the laws of evolution. These laws would suggest that we preserve ourselves at all costs. This is not a proof, but does it not perhaps indicate that God exists?"

I also asked Collins whether he had first believed in God or in Jesus Christ. He said: "Until the age of about 25, I was an atheist. I did not have a religious formation. I was a scientist who reduced almost everything to the equations and laws of physics. But as a doctor I began to meet people who were faced with the problem of life and death, and this made me think that my atheism was not an idea that had a basis. I began to read texts about rational arguments for faith that I did not know.

"First, I arrived at the conviction that atheism was the least acceptable alternative, and little by little I came to the conclusion that a God must exist who created all of this, but I did not know about this God. This led me to conduct research to find out what the nature of God is, and I found it in the Bible and in the person of Jesus. After two years of research I decided that it was not more reasonable to resist, and I became a follower of Jesus."

A major promoter of evolutionism in our days is the Englishman Richard Dawkins, the author of the book, The God Delusion. He [promoted] a public campaign to put placards on buses in English cities that read: “There’s probably no God. Now stop worrying and enjoy life.” If I put myself in the shoes of a parent with a handicapped, autistic or gravely sick child, or a farm worker who has lost his job, I wonder how such a person would react to that announcement: “There’s probably no God. Now stop worrying and enjoy life!” “Probably” – He doesn’t even exclude the possibility that God could exist! But if God doesn’t exist, the believer loses nothing. On the other hand, the nonbeliever loses everything.

The existence of evil and injustice in the world is certainly a mystery and a scandal, but without faith in a final judgment, it would be infinitely more absurd and more tragic. For many millennia of life on earth, man has become accustomed to everything; he has adapted to every climate, become immune to every disease. But there is one thing that he has not gotten used to: injustice. He continues to feel it intolerable. And it is to this thirst for justice that the universal judgment will respond.

Not only God will desire it, but, paradoxically, [people] will too, even the wicked ones. “On the day of the universal judgment, it will not only be the Judge who will descend from heaven,” the French poet Paul Claudel wrote, “but the whole earth will rush to the meeting.”

The Solemnity of Christ the King, with the Gospel of the Final Judgment, responds to the most universal of human hopes. It assures us that injustice and evil will not have the last word and at the same time it calls on us to live in such a way that justice is not a condemnation for us, but salvation, and [that] we can be those to whom Christ will say: “Come, blessed of my Father, take possession of the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.”

Pastor's Letter

Welcome to Fr. John Fischer, who is a Comboni Missionary and who is serving as a representative of the Cross Catholic missionary outreach ministry. He has personal experience of serving many years as a missionary in Kenya. May the Lord bless you for helping us to continue to be connected with the Church throughout the world!

Don't be surprised if you see very substantial work being done on the trees in and around the school playground. A closer examination showed that they might not fare well with the freezing and thawing over this upcoming winter. So, for improved safety two of them will be removed and a third substantially pruned. At the same time, please know that we are working with the local tree commission to help us obtain one or more advanced seedlings as replacements and to restore that much-needed shade in the playground and the habitats those trees provide.

On the Sunday after Thanksgiving, we will be welcoming back Deacon Jeremiah Hahn. He will be residing here as he concludes his fall semester remotely. The seminarians from Sacred Heart Major Seminary in Detroit have remained on campus essentially this whole semester without the usual fall midterm break. Like many colleges and universities, they will conclude the semester remotely.

And, please note that Deacon Jeremiah is planning a faith formation presentation open to the parish as one of his course requirements. So, please stay tuned because we get to be part of his classroom experience!

This year's Turkey Trot is drawing closer, just two weeks away. Please see the advertisement for registration. Plans are taking shape to help maintain a safe experience, likely including staggered starts with smaller groups of people. I will likely be doing a bit more “trotting” than running this year! Hopefully this will prompt getting in better shape in 2021!

Finally, please note that in light of Governor DeWine's emphasis on improvements for indoor gatherings of 10 or more, we might have some changes upcoming in the next week or so in how we conduct Holy Communion and how we take up collections. For example, Fr. Bob and I would walk between the rows to distribute Communion rather than having people walking forward to the front. The purpose would be to minimize movement within our churches during Mass and other gatherings and to minimize overlapping of our “breathing spaces”. We will also continue thorough use of our electro-static sprayers and airing out our church buildings, when necessary, between Masses.

May the Lord continue to bless us with joy and peace as disciples of Jesus and to help us always to be ready for the gift of eternal life!
