THE HOLY FATHER'S INTENTION FOR OCTOBER 2020

We pray that by the virtue of baptism, the laity, especially women, may participate more in areas of responsibility in the church.

ZACCARIAN APOSTOLATE OF PRAYER

That the young Barnabites, from the first years of formation, may joyfully welcome the Lord's mandate to bring the gospel to the ends of the earth, in the footsteps of Paul the Apostle, of St Anthony Maria Zaccaria, of St. Francesco Saverio Maria Bianchi and St. Alessandro Sauli, We Pray

SCRIPTURE REFLECTION

The Pharisees counted over three hundred commandments of the law. These three hundred commandments were the source of constant discussion: what is allowed and what is not allowed by each of them. As a result, the Jews literally enunciated thousands of regulations and rules that were to govern the behavior of pious people.

Another topic of debate was which of all these rules and regulations was the greatest, the most important, the most binding. A lawyer in today's gospel wants to get Jesus into this sort of a discussion, hoping to trick him. So he asks Jesus, "which is the greatest of the law's commandments?"

With admirable ease Jesus introduces utter simplicity into the morass of laws and regulations that cluttered up Jewish theology. He reduces all the law to two commandments, "Love God", and "Love the neighbor." As a matter of fact, Jesus makes the two commandments one, two sides of a single coin, if you wish. The one most basic commandment that sums up all the rest is expressed in the word "love." Clearly Jesus did not want Christianity to become a heartless, loveless matter of conformity to a series of laws. "Love" is at the core of Christianity. "Love" does not address rules and commandments. "Love" bursts into life in the presence of, and as a response to, persons. The motivation of Christian behavior was not to be a law feared, but a person loved, the person of God, the person of the neighbor. It was his love for the Father and his love for men and women that moved the Son of God to enter into our world and upon the work of our salvation.
