Reflecting on God's Word

It is not always easy to be family. Good parents, the old saying goes, give their children roots and wings, a sense of security and freedom to live their lives. But achieving such a balance is often accomplished only after years of working at it. Sometimes children feel smothered by their parents, that they are trying to control their lives; at other times, children feel neglected, that they are not important, even not loved.

The readings today remind us that God wishes us to know that we can find our roots in the divine love of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and that we can also find our freedom there. Paul's words to the Romans pick up first on the purpose of the gift of the Spirit that we celebrated last Sunday. The Spirit has been given us to lead us more deeply into the mystery of God, into the love of God, so that we recognize that we are God's beloved children.

This same message is found in Moses' words to the people as they are about to enter into the Promised Land. Has anyone ever had a God like our God? Moses marvels. Has any God ever shown a people how dear they are by such signs and wonders as our God has shown us? Moses is moving them to know who they are as God's beloved family and to “fix in your heart, that the LORD is God . . . and that there is no other” (Deuteronomy 4:39).

But we are not to stay all curled up in the divine embrace. We have been sent forth to proclaim to others this good news, to “go, therefore, and make disciples of all nations” (Matthew 28:19). We do this when we allow the Spirit to lead us, to guide us in witnessing to God who is Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

Reflexionemos sobre la Palabra de Dios

No siempre es fácil ser parte de una familia. Dice una vieja máxima que los padres buenos le dan a sus hijos raíces y alas, o sea una sensación de seguridad y la libertad para que vivan su propia vida. Pero adquirir esa clase de equilibrio a veces conlleva años de esfuerzos. Algunas veces los hijos se sienten sofocados por sus padres y que éstos tratan de controlar su vida; otras veces los hijos se sienten abandonados, como que no son importantes y más aún, que no son amados.

Las lecturas de hoy nos recuerdan que Dios desea que sepamos que podemos encontrar nuestras raíces en el amor divino del Padre, del Hijo y del Espíritu Santo, y que también ahí podemos encontrar nuestra libertad. Las palabras de Pablo a los romanos destacan primero el propósito del don del Espíritu, que celebramos el domingo pasado. Ese Espíritu nos ha sido dado con el propósito de llevarnos más hacia las profundidades del misterio de Dios y al amor de Dios a fin de que podamos reconocer que somos los amados hijos e hijas de Dios.

Este mismo mensaje se encuentra en las palabras que dirige Moisés al pueblo cuando se disponen a entrar en la tierra prometida. ¿Ha tenido alguien alguna vez un dios como nuestro Dios? Moisés se maravilla. ¿Ha habido algún dios que le demuestre el amor a su pueblo con los signos que Dios nos ha mostrado y los prodigios que nos ha hecho? Moisés los está llevando a conocer quiénes son ellos como familia de Dios y a reconocer que “el Señor es Dios . . . y de que no hay otro” (Deuteronomio 4:39).

Pero no por eso nos quedamos acurrucados en el abrazo divino. Hemos sido enviados a proclamarle a otras personas esta buena nueva, a ir y hacer “discípulos a todos los pueblos” (Mateo 28:19). Esto lo logramos cuando le permitimos al Espíritu dirigirnos y guiarnos en nuestro testimonio de Dios, que es Padre, Hijo y Espíritu Santo.
