G.K. Chesterton The Seven Deadly Sins A commentary by Dale Ahlquist: (part #1)

“The evils of civilization are mainly due to sin and should be corrected with a sense of sin. Let us leave it to the quiet meek(sarcasm) materialists who trace all evils to forces, balances, average and percentage. We ought to be tracing them where they are to be traced, to the seven deadly sins; To the avarice, and pride and sloth, gluttony of everybody, especially of ourselves.’

Now here is an unpleasant subject, sin. But we are going to talk about it anyway, in fact were going to talk about seven unpleasant topics as in the Seven Deadly Sins. We will try to balance the badness by also talking about virtue. However, virtue can also be an unpleasant topic because of our sins its uncomfortable to talk about right and wrong, when we're wrong. The seven Deadly Sins are pride, avarice, envy, anger, gluttony, lust and sloth. They can be listed separately, but it's difficult to discuss them separately. Though we may personally excel at certain sins, they are all still tied together. The sins have a way of sticking together. Virtues also have a way of sticking together. Interestingly enough, virtues seem to complement one another, while vices seem to contradict each another. For instance, St. Thomas Aquinas says that demons are frozen in pride and envy. Now if you think about that, these are opposites. Pride is based on the idea that I am superior to you, and envy is based on the idea that you are superior to me, which is probably why St. Thomas also says that demons are not a happy tribe. And that is the main point about sin, it makes us unhappy. We sin, of course, thinking that sin going to make us happy; in stead it makes us unhappy. Happiness is based on obedience. It is what G.K. Chesterton calls 'The Doctrine of Conditional Joy.' It is illustrated so very well in the story of man kind's very first sin. The Garden of Eden was a paradise. The man and the woman enjoyed every delight and could continue to do so, they just had to follow one rule. Guess what?

'The whole human race has a tradition of the fall. Every cult and culture, one older than another all lead back to that one idea that man held happiness on a condition and is unhappy through breaking that condition.' We even see this doctrine of conditional joy in fairy tales; Get home before midnight or your coach will turn into a pumpkin. Chesterton discovered all the great truths of mankind in the stories he learned in the nursery. And sin, unfortunately, is one of those great truths. Sin is not merely a blunder, it is deliberate disobedience. It is an act of the will, and that is its shame. Obedience is also deliberate and it is also an act of the will, and that is its glory. For Chesterton, one of the most important doctrines in the Catholic Church, one that really sets it apart from all the ancient and modern heresies is free will. It means that we can't blame our sins on anybody or anything else, except ourselves. Evil is something we choose. It is true that on occasion we encounter evil that we have not chosen, but the question is how will we respond. Who better to explain than a priest, Chesterton's priest, Fr. Brown. 'Human travail(tribulation) is mostly of two kinds. There is an accidental kind that we can't see because they are so close that we fall over them as we do a footstool. And there is the other kind of evil, the real kind, and that a man will go to seek however far off it is. Down, down, into the lost abyss.'" ### Stewardship Thought for the Week:

"But Zacchaeus stood there and said to the Lord, 'Behold, half of my possessions, Lord, I will give to the poor, and if I extorted anything from anyone I shall repay it four times over.'" (Luke 19:8)

We are all called to gratefully give back to the Lord in proportion to the blessings we have been given. This means everyone isn't called to give the same amount, but is called to give equal sacrifice. No amount is too small or insignificant! Open your heart, how is God calling you to be more generous with your financial resources and possessions?
